The Arbuckles' heirs struck it When the company increases the size of rich on Monday evening, but not until yes- their pipes the mills must do likewise. Some terday did the public begin to get onto the time ago one mill in this city ordered the significance of the strike. They could scarce conceive that a 700-barrel petroleum well was spouting within four miles of the well was spouting within four miles of the court House. Up a rough and ragged rabut found in the end that they would have vine leading from Chartiers creek, about a mile south of the mouth of the creek, the | there was no further trouble about a short oil flowed in torrents at intervals, coloring the creek with $1,000 worth of iridescent hue. The distance to the well by wagon road is perhaps a mile further, but "as the crow flies" it is not more than four miles from the court house, and the spot might be seen from the top of the tower, perhaps.

The well is in the 45° line, said one of the drillers, the line extending across the river in the neighborhood of the mouth of Woods' run in Allegheny. The depth of the well is variously stated at 2,000 and 2,200 feet. The sand has been merely penetrated, the shell of the rock only being broken. One of the men at work said that the flow might or might not be increased by deeper drilling.

drygoods store, making a round hole like that caused by a pistol bullet. Massey complained to Officer Brennan that some one had thrown the stone at his head, but in-The output is variously estimated at 500 to 700 barrels a day, and some say it is 50 barrels an hour. It is flowing by heads, and "at one time was timed and there came 11 barrels in ten minutes. There is great abundance of gas, and the tank being full, the gas threes made a commotion that sent oil in spray several rods from the tank.

SHOES GREASED FOR NOTHING. You could get your shoes greased by waiking through the grass 50 feet from the weil. There was no attempt made at con-cealment, and it was a good day for livery stable men at Chartiers, rigs being in more request as the day grew. The only people not allowed near the well are coon hunters with their torches and lanterns. If you don't mind climbing a steep hill and being covered with beggar lice and Spanish needles you can get up to the hill from Chartiers creek in a few minutes on foot.

As an evidence of how little is known even by geologists and people whose busi-ness it is to know something about oil and is deeper than the Arbuckles, gas hardly sufficient to supply two boilers was found. while a few rods still further west is a good well on the same farm, that has been producing oil for months. Still west of this is the Moore gas well, which did not come up to expectations, and on strength of the disappointment leases west of it were abandoned. Ecarcely had this been done when the Fort Pitt Company struck a well nearly a mile still further west on the Diep farm, which after a month from date of strike is still putting out 1,000 barrels of oil a week and it is but 1,400 feet deep. It was bored for gas, but a revenue of $150 a day isn't bad consolation for the disappointment.

IT WAS TROUBLESOME WORK.

The Arbuckles' well has had an eventful history. Work was begun in April. At a depth of 1,600 feet a slanting fissure in the rock was struck, and after a protracted effort to straighten a crooked hole it was aban-doned, the rig readjusted and a new bore begun 20 feet away. After the second hole was well on the way the tools were lost in it, and then followed a five weeks' fishing job. People in the vicinity say that Fred Laninger has for years stated there was either oil or gas in the ravine. When tired hunting he would sit down and meditate. and if not startled out of his reverie by the gambols of a squirrel on the brink of ruin he ould hear labored sounds in the bowels of the earth. At times they resembled the gurgling of some fluid, like the kechug, kiching of hard cider from a jug, and at ethers like the labored breathing of some subterranean monster who was struggling the one now closing.

To-day same of the music from the II gaying so for years, some people who laughed at him now begin to think he may evening Beethoven's symphony will be The oil is considered equal to that of Washington county. The Guffey people control a large amount of territory in the neighborhood. The well is in the Gordon sand, and is the largest yet struck in the Crafton field. H. S. Messrs. Raymond & Whitcomb are preparing to take a large number of Eastern tourists to the Pacific coast the coming winter. Two parties are to leave Philadelphia, November 14 and December 12, and a aree number of names are enrolled upon both lists. Magnificent vestibuled trains are to be used on both occasions, the cars going through from Philadelphia to the doors of The Raymond, at East Pasadena, Cal., without change. Dining cars and composite cars (with barber shop and bathroom included) will be run on both trains. That the coming winter will witness an increased tide of travel to the Pacific coast, is already strongly indicated. The Califormin trips will be continued through the winter and early spring months, and there will also be excursions to Mexico in January, February and March. The Philadelphia Company's 36-Inch Line

The officials of the Philadelphia Company expect to have their new 36-meh line from Telford to Niblock, a distance of about 21/2 miles, completed between the 1st and 5th of next month. When the line is finished it will have a greater capacity than all the other lines in the field put together. The company is laying about 500 feet per day, and about one-third of the line is down. When the small lines are turned into the large 36-inch main there will be more than a sufficient quantity of gas for consumers. It is expected that the howl about a shortage of gas will cease in consequence this winter.

An official of the company stated yester day that the complaint among iron manufacturers and other consumers about a shortage of gas was wrong, and the short supply was the fault of the consumers themselves. When the 36-inch main is in opera-tion the same trouble will be experienced cas shut off after laying their own pipe line. They had been asked to enlarge their pipes, to repipe the mill. This was done and
